"Irracana is not worrying about rail roads," said Mr. Elliort, of the Trader Bank of that place, the other day it Calgary. "We are on the Canadia Pacific brauch running north from Lang don to Alix and what is more important don to Alix and what is more important, agrading has been started upon a line running east which will tap the great eastern district. The contractors report they will have at least 15 miles of this particular line graded before the snow lifes. This extension to the cast is a link in the Crossfield-Kininvie branch and proves that Irrasana will be an important junctional point.

"At the present time our town is exceptionally busy, and along the railway right of way may be seen the bridges on the three crews, who are rushing in the bridges on that there may be no delay in the laying of the steel. The Grand Trunk Pacific have already streved their line practi-me terrible agony. After two months' treatment the doctor said there was no cure, and amputation would have to take place if I intended to save my arm. I left that doctor and consulted another.

After a few weeks' treatment, he also told me that operation would be necessary. He said the bone had become diseased and the finger would have to be opened so that the lose could be screped; I went sway to consider when I would have the operation performed and met a friend who solvied me to try Zam-Buk.
"That night I shethed the wound and put on some Zam-Buk. I got a little sleep for the foot soldiers in the field. That weight has gradually increased until it is now about 40 ner cent of the weight of the man who carries it, and of this weight nearly fifty pounds are represented by arms and accouterments, with twelve or thirteen pounds additional in the way of ciothing. All sorts of suggestions have been made in the hope that some way of reducing the burden might be found. The experts agree that the soidler's load should be retreen, one light weight blanket, rations for three days and perhaps a light ratioprior shelter. It is maintained that the remainder of the kit should be carried in the wagons and distribured to the men as they need it.

The Dulcitors.

The duction of Thomas Machell of Glasgow has the keyboard of a plano, but the key hammers produce sound by striking steel forks—like shankiess tuning forks—instead of wires. A semicircular steel spring carries the vibrations from each fork to the sounding board. The tone is softer than that of the plano, but it has and is adapted for sool playing as well as for accompanying other instruments or the voice. Important advantages are the lack of necessity of tuning and the portability. On Friday last the Show, for which preparations have been in hand for some time past, was held at the school house, Grand Valley, and notwithstandling the weather, which was, to say the least, in-propitious, a strong cold, wind blowing all day—was successful to a degree which surprised all visitions, and must have been highly gratifying to the Ex-Surprise and the school of the surprised all visitions and must be successful to the Ex-Surprise and the surprised all visitions and must be successful to the Ex-Surprise and the surprised all visitions and must be successful to the Ex-Surprise and the surprised surprised and the surprised surprised surprised to the surprised surprised when surprised all visitors, and must have been highly gratifying to the Exceptive and all members of the Society. By noon a large number of people were on the ground, and the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. H. M. Lumsden called upon Dr. A. W. Park to open the Exhibition. Dr. Park, in a short and complimentary speech, formally declared the Show open, after which Mr. D. Mc-Eachen, the President of the Society, and Mr. Lumsden each addressed the company, who then dispersed to inspect the many exhibits, and to get some lunch before proceeding to the serious business of the day.

The school house itself was devoted to the many classes of Ladies' work etc., while the display of vegetables, grains, butter and eggs was housed in a large unarquee close by, at one end of which George Pitter, of Dog Pound, presided over a wall fornished refreshment stall, at which he did good business throughout the day. Another tent was occupied by sid and Mrs. Chester who had undertaken the heavy task of providing a substantial meal for all comers, whose sunnbers must have rather frightened the catterys, who, however were equal to the content of the content of the district and the snecess of it's Show. All who have head any experience in such matters will know how difficult it is to organize such au undertaking without the conveness.

had any experience in such matters wil know how difficult it is to organize such know how difficult it is to organize such an undertaking without the occurrence of differences of opinion, small jealousies, and other such obstacles which are most difficult to arrange and dispel, and can only be avoided by the most hearty co-operation. Everything in the conduct of this above goes to indicate that such diffi-culties either did not occur or were culties either did not occur or were quickly overcome by wise concession and diplomacy. It is impossible to name all diplomacy. It is impossible to name all who contributed long and hard work of hand or train to the happy result attain-ed, but as an example we may note the fact that the preparations of the caterers alone gave them busy occupation for five days, while on the great day itself they worked at high pressure from early morn-ing till late at night.
